Bengie, this is your life!

This year, as in every preceding year, a new and different Bengie made his appearance in September. That Bengie included many things, enthusiastic students, anxious faculty members, Central's famous fighting spirit, happy thrills at sports events, momentary tears after a hard-fought battle that was lost, old and honored traditions, scholastic achievement, and the list goes on.

And we recall many things about this Bengie. We remember the thrills and the sorrows, the happy and the unhappy, the fortunes and disasters. But one thing seems to stand out — we store the regrets in our hearts for future telling in quiet places. The happy moments we recall most vividly, they bubble up unceasingly; and we can tell about them without having to fumble for words. We tell them everywhere; we see them everywhere, in an empty hall, empty except for two persons, a boy and a girl, a tender glance, a funny remark.

Wherever there are smiling faces and laughing eyes, we can see those happy moments bubbling up. And so it goes.

It is like this with Bengie, too. His life story is a story of triumph and achievement. And this means happy moments.

This year saw Bengie as a king in sports. This year saw many students progress in learning and knowledge. This year saw Central as an important center for the education of adults who finally realized the advantages of that education. This year saw Central increase in fame. This year is a happy year. That is the story of Bengie's life.

The regrets always slip in and that can't be helped; but Bengie has always been bigger than those failures. That, too, is the story of Bengie's life.

A tribute to Bengie ...

Built many, many decades ago on dirt and stone, sweat and toil, and bygone traditions, Central stands today as a tribute to Bengie's profound advances and achievements in education and learning. Central is a tribute to the community, a community whose citizens depend greatly on her night school and summer school courses.

Students at Central are offered every course from art to trigonometry. They study in newly remodeled rooms under the guidance of able faculty members. Central provides fine opportunities for all to learn.

Central has provided many a young man with the experience necessary to work in this community's many factories, performing jobs which are the backbone of this city.

Yes, Central provides life for living. Central takes care of her own, making them secure in the knowledge that they can succeed. And where there is security, there is happiness. This is your life, Bengie!

"I'll have a bowl of saup todoy, I guess." "Give me an ice creom bar." Befare you eot, you must get your food from the cafeteria counter.

Cafeteria, the ideal place for ...

The cofeteria's a special kind of place. If you haven't spent an hour there every day, you have lost a part of your high school fun. In it can be found all kinds of people doing all kinds of things. It doesn't really matter if you bring your lunch or buy your lunch; being there is what counts.

In one part of the cafeteria is located a table at which a group of senior boys discuss senior girls. Right next to this there is one of senior girls who discuss senior boys.

One student may find the cafeteria the ideal place for doing class assignments for the next period, study for an important test, or to do his girl-friend's book report. More often than not, students bring their books with full intent to study, but end up talking their time away. Oh, well!

The most popular recreation in the cofeteria is playing cards. A couple of guys teaching a couple of gals the basic fundamentals of Euchre makes a happy scene. Of course, it takes the gals the longest time to learn and they always trump their partner's oce.

Wonder what those men teachers are talking about at that table in the corner? Bet they're gossiping. Never! Want to bet? I'll never believe it.

"Hey, look at that! What? That cute dame."

"Who was that girl you were with, Joe?"

"Whot girl?"

"I sow you! Here's your old ring back!"

"But Borb . . . I "

There are o few in every cafeteria period. Freeloaders! This character gently flits from table to table, slyly but craftily coaxing someone out of a bit of food. Watch out for him, he's clever.

This is the life, the life of the cafeteria. It shortens the day, lightens the heart. Indeed, it is the life.

"Sloppy joe, $20 \, \xi$. . . ice cream $10 \, \xi$, that'll be $45 \, \xi$, please." At the end of the lunch line stands the cashier, ringing up bills, making change, and going on to the next in line to start the process over.

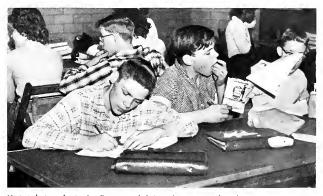

With nothing else to do mony of the boys turn to cord ploying after eating lunch. Even if one prefers to be "olone" card playing need not be ruled out.

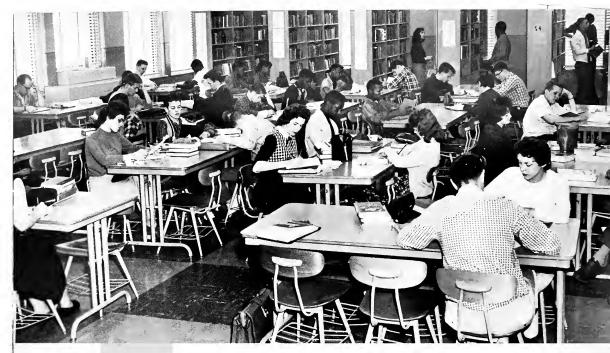

With eating of primary importance, many students find lunch period α good time to get a little serious studying done.

"C'mon, let's get this line moving, I don't have all day." Before one can even get a look at ar a smell of something to eat, he must stand in line while athers fill their trays.

Most students prefer to do all or part of their studying in an informal setting. In the cofeterio they can take frequent breaks to talk to friends or eat something.

Probably the most popular place in school for Bengie's fomily to study is the library. Here students are permitted to move about freely, getting books from the shelves or checking assignments with fellow classmates or reading magazines, so lang as they are quiet.

Start with a quiet room.

It tokes a quiet room, a closed, concentrating mind, and a sharp pencil to accomplish the fine art of studying. Central's study hall helps accomplish this. Degrees of quietness depend upon which period you happen to be there. Period one can be partially eliminated; some have not fully awakened, others have homework to do. It must be period seven (that lost hour is a long one) when voices elevate themselves above a dull roor.

The beautiful, bright library is a most wonderful place. Always it is quiet. Always it looks cheerful. You have at your hands books, magazines, and the lotest newspapers. You have much greater freedom of movement than is possible in the study hall. Most fellows appreciate the lovely array of service workers in the library.

The active people, who have to make their own time, often have to make their own study halls. This is accomplished at the end of classtime, in homeroom, between scenes at dromatics, or between bites at the lunch table.

Happy is the scholar who has his studies done, now it's time for fun.

Supervised study can be found only in the classroom. Most teachers affer their classes frequent apportunities to study near the end of regular class periods to work an future assignments when the teacher is nearby ready to answer individual questions and give personal assistance. Students find this a good time to get much work dane.

Extra-curriculars often offer potential study time for busy students seeking the well-rounded experiences of after-school activities. Bab Tilker snatches a little studying on the auditorium stage apron during rehearsal of a play to be given during school.

With studying its principal objective, study hall offers a wide variety of possibilities for quiet personal activity or inactivity. Among ather things can be found studying, sleeping, daydreaming, reading the Spatlight or magazines, and even note passing.

Study hall provides an excellent place far serious studying for a student with a busy schedule as in the case of Belva Bender.

ABOVE: "Coach Herb Banet suffered many anxious moments in the State basketball tourney at Indianapolis." On the bench behind him are assistant coach Bab Armstrang, LeRay Turner, Ray Thompson, Steve Hanic, and Bob Tilker. BELOW: Kelley Keim and Bengie (Dave Fitzwater) laok aver the crowd as Diann Hood, Belya Bender, and Connie Leach lead a cheer.

INSET: "So near, yet so far . . . I could just die . . . Let's get out of here." These were just a few of the many words uttered after the Bengals' gome in the State finals at Butler Fieldhause.

Mighty, proud Bengie;

An inspiring coach, a yelling crowd, a fighting team, and a heck of a lot of spirit. That's another facet af Bengie, ane especially prevalent during the basketball season. And this year was Central's year for basketball.

It started a lang time aga, when ten different guys first tauched a basketball. Gradually they learned to love it.

This year thase ten guys got their hands on that basketball again. They made good use of it, even in Indianapalis.

It does a school good to see a team improve steadily and surely. It does a school good to see the way the town turned out to cheer those guys, even when they came back in defeat. They all soid the same thing, ". . . we tried." "Wait'll next year." But that's a different stary for another teller to tell.

Took City. Took Sectional. Took Regional. Took Semistate; and State, well . . . darn near took that, too!

Bengie rose to great heights this year. Mighty Bengie, proud Bengie. Gat a right to be proud; laak at what his bays did.

Night School:

The elderly folks seem to realize that typing con be of some assistance, either at home or work.

Dressmoking, as these night school women know, will be an essential facet of good homemaking.

the facet almost forgotten.

Deeply concentrating on the basic fundomentals of our American Government, many night school students learn to appreciate and even enjoy social science.

Upholstery closs is one of Centrol's new night school courses. Class members undoubtedly get much enjoyment in upholstering ond re-making their own furniture.

Shop courses, such as this welding class, give many men the training they need for better paying jobs or even promotions in their present work.

Many of us seldom notice it; night school, that is. It must be important, though. There is greater enrollment in night school at Central than in the regular day classes. Wonder why? Must be an awful lot of people who think that education is important.

Courses vary from arithmetic to government, typing, shop, and the like. Most of the people take business and vocational courses, since these are the most important to their jobs.

Night school can have its problems. If Mom and Dad have classes on the same night, you shouldn't be surprised to see an 18-month-old baby going to school, too. This happens.

You begin to wonder how young some people like to feel when you see Grandma in typing class, probably getting too nervous to write. Some people just never give up.

Night school is a great thing. It's part of Bengie, a part that we almost take for granted.

Senior Sue Beerbower tries on her cop ond gown before graduation exercizes. Cops and gowns also gove seniors prestige on Recognition Day.

Students compose basis for Bengie.

Dunking Sophomore boys was a favorite at the Sophomore Carnival. Here one of the sophomores takes the plunge into the tank after someone hit the target.

Juniors Doug Hughes, Phil Loyton, Don O'Brien, Bill Frederick, Norm Engelbrecht, Don Booty, and Bob Hampton fold Spotlights with the announcement of the Junior Prom court.

Bengie is composed of many things, students mostly — Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen; students who can look big and make a lot of noise; students who do all the criticizing and never their share of the work; students who are conscientious about their work and their responsibilities; students who never wear the latest styles; easy going, all-American type guys; cute and pert gals.

They're all here, Bengie. Sometimes they're a strange lot. Some of them have marvelous intelligence, yet they prefer the easy way, the easy courses and the good times. Others are not so great in mental ability but they work at it. But that's the way it is.

They're a good part of Bengie. They can make or break him by their actions. They brought honor to you, Bengie; you can be proud.

We're proud of these top-flight seniors.

Throughout the last four years, all class projects have been planned with enthusiasm and carried out with a great deal of hard work. Success has been the proof of this.

Outstanding Seniors also mark this class as one long to be remembered. And they have been outstanding in every field; scholastic, sports, ar extra-curricular.

As a class, the seniars have many projects: the Seniar Prom, the Seniar banquet, and the Seniar picnic. The Seniar Class backs the Seniar play, Recognition Day, and graduation ceremonies.

A Seniar's year begins with the election of class officers. A vigaraus campaign takes place. Signs can be seen in every corridor displaying the candidates' names and pramises and a certain amount of originality on the part of the sign makers. In the cafeteria will undaubtedly be seen a huge sign hanging from the ceiling.

Naminations are quite often humanous as inexperienced politicians attempt to convince everyone that their candidate is the only qualified

A week later, it was discovered that the Seniors had elected Onofre Gutierrez as president, Barry Jenkins as vice-president, and Nancy Tielker as secretary.

One of the first responsibilities of these seniors is to get ready for the semi-formal Senior Prom. Members of the Senior Congress decided on the name "Winter Fantasy."

Mr. Robert Dornte did a great job at taking care of tickets and maney. He and Miss Vera Pence ralled up their sleeves and helped the Seniors to advertise and decorate for the Prom. Miss Pence gave a sigh of relief at the termination of a well-put-on Prom. But, no saoner had she gatten her breath back than she smelled the odors af a Senior Banquet. Back to work, everyone.

And wark they did. They made "Sayanara" one of the most success-

And wark they are in the first advanced on the first successful banquets of its kind in many years.

While time passes until the day of the Seniar picnic, a few words must be said about the magnificent class advisers.

One cannot possibly realize the hard work, the huge responsibility, and the tremendous worry that accompanies this hanar jab.

To take an idea and a handful of hard working students and produce a banquet or prom or picnic with the success that this Senior Class has enjoyed is quite an accomplishment.

Miss Pence and Mr. Dornte are these two advisers, and they deserve the thanks of every senior and the respect of every teacher. To have such advisers is an honor in itself. To Miss Pence and Mr. Dornte, a salute from the Seniar Class.

Senior classes are here one day and graduated the next, This class is na different, but it has been outstanding in such a way that not very many decades will elapse before it fades from memory.

Ann Beers intends to fulfill the honor of being chosen Girl Most Likely to Succeed by that little bit of extro effort.

As recipient of the Kiwonis Best Citizen award, Ricky Komm feels that good citizenship should be a part of everyone's personality.

Senior Robert Tilker was voted Boy Most Likely to Succeed, as well as being honored as Best Boy Citizen.

Gordon Boinbridge, junior class vice-president; Connie Leach, secretary; and Don Booty, president; are officers of a class that is responsible for many new traditions.

Mr. George Tricolas and Miss Connie Standish, Junior Class advisers, ore known for their ability at dreaming up fresh and original ideas.

This year's Junior Class worked hard in every thing they did to make the Class of '61 the best junior class ever. "My Blue Heaven" was the name chosen for this year's Junior Prom. Twinkling stars of blue, sprinkled with glitter, are just one of the many decorations. Like every other junior class, this class worked hard to make their Junior Prom the best ever. During spring vacation, they worked especially hard to make this year's Prom a big success. Eye-catching bulletin boards were used for the publicity of "My Blue Heaven."

The prom court and queen were chosen by three different votings of the Junior Class. Connie Leach was chosen the Junior Prom Queen; her court consisted of Carolyn Lange, Ida Davis, Francis Curry, Elizabeth Arnold, Omintha Petrie, Olga Litwinko, Barbara Beerbower, Sue Davis, Pettie Griggs, Marty Thomas, Rochelle Tieman, and Aljean Rogers.

"The Defiance of David Chorles" was the title of the Junior Play. The play was of the problems that confront today's teenagers.

The "neat" Fighting Central Tiger sweatshirts sold by the Junior Class were wanted by many students, and they seemed to boost that "Fighting Tiger" spirit. On January 29, the Junior Class sponsored a bus trip to the Central game against Richmond at Richmond, to show the team we were behind them.

The Battle of the Classexes gave the Juniors the "Best Costumes" and "Best Act" awards to the junior girls and junior boys, respectively. This was the second consecutive year for these awards to be won by the Class of '61. The Junior are now looking forward to their last year, for next year they will be Seniors.

Larry Juday, Saphamore Class president; Cheri Miller, secretary; and Ricky Kempf, vice-president; have proved their leadership in all class projects.

Saphamare advisers, Mr. John Baughman and Mrs. Daris Sauerwein, know the "sweet smell of success" from their experience with the Saphamore Carnival.

Hey!! We are having a Sophomore Carnival.

An exciting campaign having ended and nominations over at last, serious business could be taken by the Sophamore afficers.

Their first step was to select members for a Sophomare congress. This task was achieved through homeroom voting. One person from each homeroom and on alternate were required to be in the Cangress. Therefore every two weeks, a group of Sophomores met to discuss business. With authority in hand, Larry Juday, Sophomore Class president, took over the meetings. Feverishly scribbling down nates was Cheri Miller, class secretary, and sitting by for an emergency was Ricky Kempf, vice-president.

After an exciting discussion about the praspects for a Sophamore Cornival had died down, committees, with a load at responsibility, were appainted. "Who is going to be on publicity?" "I want to help with the tolent show." And so it went. Some cammittees were slaw or others were way ahead. Finally, the Cornival took shope.

An anonymous Sophomore came through with the name "Amazarama." It took hold and became the name of this carnival.

The cornival featured several new ideas that helped bring sparkling success for them. One such idea was that of having a carnival queen. Girls were selected to be voted on, and, at the carnival, everyone who wanted to vote paid five cents a vote. Linda Raquet was voted queen. Another idea that was revived from former years was the "Sophomore."

Dip." Plenty of boys got dunked that night by sure fire baseball throwers. "Hoopla," "Country Store," and "Western Unian" took in a lat of dimes and nickels.

Through the efforts of the Sophomores and the hard work and patience of Mrs. Doris Sauerwein and Mr. John Baughman, class advisers, the carnival was one of the best ottended and most successful in many a year.

These Sophamares were not through yet. They had a few more plans in store. One such plan was a Sophamore appreciation day, or Sophamore recognition.

In this program, the Sophomores recognized outstanding members of their own class. Special awards were given for attendance. This program has undaubtedly encouraged other Sophomores ta strive far better grades.

Talented Sophomores were given a chance to show their "stuff." At a Sophamore assembly they gave the students a treat.

This was a first experience for Mrs. Souerwein as an adviser. Having started at Central several years ago, she has shown what a class can da. As a teacher, her specialty is home economics.

The other adviser, Mr. Baughman, is an English and Spanish teacher. He has certainly aided in the success of this class.

Frosh president, Arthur Page; vice-president, Glenard Cayce; and secretary, Koren Marsholl; began a completely new experience as class officers and leaders.

Freshmon Class advisers, Mrs. Irene Rohmer and Mr. William Statts, ore preparing to take over their faur year job of helping and advising.

We have a large class with great potential.

"The Spirit of Central" was an assembly far the Freshmen in September, so that the Freshmen could learn same of the autstanding traditions of Central. The assembly was planned so that the Freshmen would know how to vate far their class officers and how to prepare far their coming events. They have done many things to make them well-informed and well-rounded Centralites.

In October, the Freshmen elected an enthusiastic tria of afficers. Arthur Page was elected president, Glenard Cayce was elected vice-president, and Karen Marshall was elected secretary.

The afficers appointed many committees to plan for the Freshman party. Everything was soon underway for the Freshman party, "Snowball Sashay." At the party, games, dancing, and refreshments were enjayed, and all the Freshmen became better acquainted.

A spiritual assembly was held at the beginning of the second semester to show the religious aspects of Central to the new Freshmen. Reverend LaSuer presented a message of inspiration to all the Freshmen, trying to give them more self-confidence.

On April 29, the Freshmen presented a dance for all Centralites who wanted to attend. The dance was held to boost the acquaintance of all Centralites.

The Freshmen were well represented at the Honor Banquet held each spring, and when Recognitian Day came rolling around, many honors were earned in both scholarship and extra-curricular activities.

The Freshmen also participated in the Battle of the Classexes. They did not win any awards, but they had the experience so that next year they might have that chance of winning some award.

The scholarship tests given to both the Freshmen and Saphomores also gave the Freshmen a chance to see in which subjects their weakest paints were. The Class of '63 is now laoking forward to next year when they will be sophomores.

Mr. Dovid Griggs prepares to begin onother day's closs in biology. This scene, or many others like it, is familiar to every student at Central.

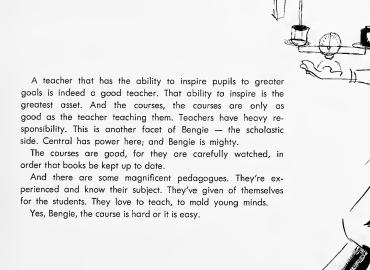

A teacher's goal is to inspire.

Four art students wark on modern art in the art room, Creative work such os this is common in many of Central's classrooms.

Mr. Aaran Still discusses current events with his sacialagy class. Informal discussion such as this is an integral part of many classes at Certral.

Mr. Spuller is a true Centralite. Among his other duties he attends many of Central's dances, ball games, banquets, ond concerts. He enjoys the octivities of the pupils and joins the fun. He may be found at Central almost anytime, day or night, at work far his school.

Paul Spuller and crew make our school tops.

Centralites take great pride in their principal. Mr. Paul Spuller has always enjayed working for the good of the student and the betterment of Central. The optimism and trust he has always placed in Central's students has done much to foster school spirit and happy public relations.

His days are always busy. He prepares and administers the budget. He supervises the faculty, the schedule, the curriculum, and the guidance program. Mr. Spuller's problems are the problems of students. He is truly the friend of the student and teacher alike. His keen sense of humor brightens life for all, and his conscientious attitude toward school problems wins everyones' respect.

Superintendent Aaron T. Lindley has headed the Fort Wayne community schools for eight years. This alone speaks for his obilities. He has supervised and witnessed a tremendous growth as well as a continued improvement.

Mrs. Winifred Ormerod is a name Centralites associate with friendliness and pleasantness because of her potience as school treasurer.

The office secretaries, Mrs. Betty Beerbower and Mrs. Mildred Keuneke, are referred to as "Betty" and Mick" because they move about so quickly that one doesn't have time to hail them by their full nomes. They mointain the clerical part of the office.

Mr. Lindley is a genial man who is much in earnest about baasting and building the school system of Fort Wayne. From his office across the street, he views with pride Central's many accomplishments. He is considered a definite part of Central.

Warking an one of the thankless jobs, but so graciously done, are Mrs. Betty Beerbower and Mrs. Mildred Keuneke, office secretaries.

Mr. Virts is a firm believer in the soying, "Smile and the world smiles with you," which he exemplifies in all his mannerisms. Miss Meribah Ingham, Central's Dean of Girls, has spent many fruitful years here as advisor and friend. Miss Mildred Brigham, Guidance Director, is one of the busiest persons of Central. She not only teaches French, but also, in the guidance office, she checks credits, makes pragrams, and helps the students plan their futures.

Mrs. Mary Watsan, attendance clerk, untongles all the mysteries that arise when deciding who was where at what time. Mr. Edward Schlecht is a name students ossaciate with pleasantness because of his patience and understanding as athletic director. Mr. Schlecht's work in the othletic department has been valuable during this past year. Need counseling? Mr. William Wotson understands teenagers. Many matters of routine and special interest ga ta his affice. Mr. Watson offers wise caunseling about such things as pragrams and prafessions.

Mrs. Winifred Ormerod, school treasurer, goes over some af her work, which is so vital to the administration of Central High School.

Willingness to serve describes them best.

No personal problem or college problem is too large or too small to get attention from an experienced adult at Central. Centralites are extremely fortunate in being able to bring problems to patient and understanding teachers and guidance and counseling directors. Students are grateful for their assistance, and counselors in return are pleased to know that students respect their opinions and judgement.

Personal problems, however, are not the only problems they help solve. Miss Mildred Brigham, head of the guidance department, is ready to assist with credits, programs, college choices, or anything else that applies to school and its complexities

Dean of Girls, Miss Meribah Ingham, gives her helpful criticism, as well as deserving praise, to the girls of Central. Mr. Ralph O. Virts, Dean of Boys, assists in many problems concerning school and outside activities. Going to the deans is not an occasion of trial or trouble. It is instead an occasion of encouragement and fine relationship between the teachers and students of Central.

Miss Emma Adams mokes many programs and aids students in improving their schedules. Mr. William Watson counsels those who need guidance in regard to attendance.

Yes, Centralites need never lack guidance and will not, for Central's faculty intend to do all they can to help direct Central students into suitable fields.

A hearty service crew keeps school shining.

Serving Central without thought of recognition, janitors, cooks, and cafeteria help work long haurs each day to keep Central running smoothly. Each morning, long before most students arrive at school the custodial staff is busy making the building as clean and comfortable as possible. They are always on hand throughout the day to meet any emergency which might arise, and they often must stay late at night, to clean up after school functions. Many students have found themselves being thankful that the janitars are around when they get locked out of a room, or are in need of a helping hand.

Early in the day the kitchen staff begins to prepare a well planned lunch to keep Centralites healthy. The odor of delicious food reveals to the students that the cooks are busy at work. Ten friendly cooks are ready, willing, and able to serve Centralites their noon meal. The cafeteria aids Central by providing wholesome meals at reasonable prices for students and teachers. An up-to-date kitchen, a spacious dining hall, and varied menus are cafeteria features.

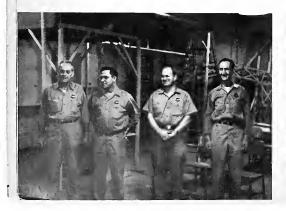

Miss Hildegard Schoenemann prepare to take mare faad out to the lunch line. Miss Schoenemann is just one of the ten friendly caoks in Central's cafeteria.

LEFT: Central's oble cooks include Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Myers, Miss Schoenemann, Mrs. Harkless, Mrs. Dalzell, Mrs. Meshberger, Mrs. Brawn, and Mrs. Myers.

College-type system gives aid to Frosh.

As Seniors directed them to the elevotor and Juniors sold them tickets to the swimming pool, Freshmen overcame such handicaps and came out of that "small world of their own" and came into an even newer course with foreign languages and eagerly joined activities open to freshmen.

Although their curriculum still seems stronge to mony upperclossmen, the new Frosh mastered their course, taking orientation, shop, home ec, and music, along with other specified courses available to x, y, and z lanes.

The program attempted to show each student his interests and obilities so that a more specialized course could be chosen by the individual.

"It works like this," explains Mr. Dille to Sue McCray and David Meyers. Learning how to vote is a valuable training given in freshman orientation.

Mr. Watson, guidance counselor, helps Ruth Simpson with an ossignment in her freshman orientation class. Joe Hane, Patty Potrick, Willie Turner, and Mr. Bear discuss orientation topics as Larry McCombs watches and listens

In science we study Ma Nature's wonders.

"I don't care if it's been dead a hundred years! I won't touch it!"

"I think this gos we're mixing is poison . . ."

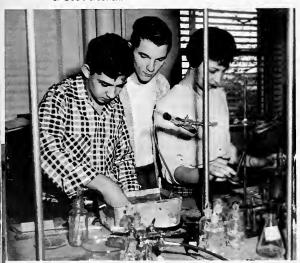

"Hey, fella, you're supposed to be weighing the bross cylinder, not your thumbs!

Comments such as these con mean only one thing, some of Central's science students are busily gathering experimental facts and figures.

Sputnik and Mutnik were Russio's bids for the technological superiority which the United Stotes has long enjoyed. To help answer this challenge, Central's science program offers the kind and number of courses that science students need. Central offers general science, biology, physical geography, physics, and chemistry.

Science is the activity whereby mon gains understanding and control of nature. A tremendous amount of responsibility is placed upon those who have control of the fantastic power recently developed. They can use it for man's progress and advancement in the world or for his destruction and ruin. That is why it is so important that there be scientists with high Christian principals and ideals. New discoveries must be used for the good of mankind or they will not be serving the purposes for which they were intended.

In science, the student is encouraged to question the characteristics of nature, universal laws, and the past methods of exploring the unknown. Through keen observation and careful thought, Central students learn of the wonders of God's creation.

With adars of sulfur ane day and broken test tubes the next, chemistry affers Gary Ryan, Jim Neer, and Margaret Canrad new facts and ideas.

Mr. Jerry Woodring brings out the importance of journalism to one of his English classes. Here, students learn the essentials and importance of effective writing through the printed page.

To enjoy the art of living, one must appreciate English.

Someone has said, "If you don't enjoy English you don't enjoy living." English offers the privilege of seeing one's cultural heritage in perspective. Thinking of past English classes reminds Centralites of discussions, reading plays and poetry in class, and many other activities. Also in English, students learn not only to read but also to analyze and understand what they read, to write and spell, and to increase their vocabulary.

English not only pertains to literature, spelling, and grammor, but also to a better understanding of people, places, and opinions. English is many things, speaking, writing, reading, understanding great writers, and grasping philosophy of good living. It gives one an opportunity to meet great writers and to study their words of wisdom, words which blazed the trail of our civilization.

Understanding grammar is a necessity in Central's English courses. Mrs. Storlee discusses the use of grammor in oral expression with Judy Sarazen, Pam Koluza, and Bannie Booker.

Larry Rust develaps an appreciation for good literature as he goes aver a weekly quiz with Mrs. Martone. Literature is just one phase of Central's English courses.

We offer many well-rounded English courses.

The term "English" is broad and confusing becouse it includes so mony phases of instruction. English really means grammar, composition, oral expression, forms of social usage, and other lessons in how to convey one person's thoughts to another.

Central's English Department places much emphasis on learning the English longuage. Therefore, well-rounded English courses are offered to the student throughout his high school career. English instruction at Central provides a broad background in the elements of self-expression and appreciation of good literature. Students learn the essentials of effective writing, besides the pleasures of reading poetry, droma, and short stories.

"I have no words; my voice is my sword . . ." exclaims Bob Tilker as he participates in Shakespeare's Mocbeth, presented by the 5x English classes far ather English classes.

Understanding great writers is another part of Central's English instruction. David Hanic, Larry McCambs, and Necie Thurmand examine a bulletin board made in connection with their literature book.

Culture is studied through languages.

The world is shrinking more and more, and foreign languages are becoming increasingly important. Central's foreign languages include French, Latin, and Spanish. Maybe someday when the universe begins to shrink, Martian will be added to the list.

Centralites realize that the knowledge of foreign languages is important, not only to "globe and space trovelers," but also to those who plan to go to college. Nearly all colleges require at least two years of a foreign language.

The study of a foreign language develops perseverence, exactness, and other valuable mental habits. It also is the means of obtaining unity between countries and nations. If we understand the culture of others and their way of life, we will be more capable of understanding their principles and ideals.

 $V\!=\!lwh$ or valume equals length times width time height, as explained by Larry Perkins ta Sharon Kammeyer, Rose Johnson, and Waody Broaks in a freshman algebra class.

"It works like this," explains Gary Gemmer to Gerry Hey, Sharon Hughes, and Cletus Edmonds. Mathematics pravides valuable training in solving problems through logical thought.

Preparation for a useful life is attained through Math

The field of mathematics is said to be the base of all science. This point is logical because, looking bock, it can be remembered that arithmetic begins in the very early grades and then continues up through high school with algebro, geometry, and trigonometry.

The value of mathematics is a topic that can't be argued. Mathematics is sometimes called "Gad's plan of the universe." It is necessary far the hausewife in the home, the business man in the affice, and the scientist in the laboratory.

First year math is of use in everyday life. Algebro and geometry are required subjects to enter many colleges. Triganometry and higher forms of algebra and geometry are useful for students who plan to enter a technical field.

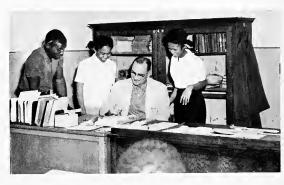

Mathematics provides valuable training in solving problems through lagical thought, besides apening wide the doors of scientific advancement. With mathematics, students begin their preparation for careers in medicine, engineering, and science.

Mathemotics' greatest value, however, is the training the mind receives from its study.

In Social Science we study world problems.

Everything from prehistoric man to the American Explorer was studied and analyzed by social science students. Central's social studies include United States history, world history, sociology, government, economics, Indiana history, and freshman orientation.

"The past is prologue." Knowledge of the past leads to a better understanding of the present; applications of history's teachings guide our future as citizens. History is in the making and it is a "must" to know where we have been, to know where we are going.

In the Social Studies Department, a student forms ideas and opinions about our present economic, political, and social problems so that he can become a future leader in our country. Students are made aware of the everyday problems in modern life. In these studies we learn of the full significance of freedom and we realize that this freedom must be preserved.

Business education is vital in many careers.

Though business needs executives and monagement, equally important to the survivol of the efficient office are its secretaries and office workers.

Central's able business teachers believe these subjects to be important. And important they are, too. Without these business essentials o commercial nation, such as United States is, couldn't possibly function efficiently.

Knowledge of keyboard techniques is fundamental for careers in the stenogrophic field. Graduates, turning from the role of student to wage earner, find that business education is helpful and often vital in the securing of a desirable position.

Armed with this knowledge, Central students are prepared for progress, confident of their abilities, and eager for success. A quick, informed mind; agile finger; desire for accomplishments — all are factors in business efficiency.

Home Ec represents the practical side.

Odors of gingerbread and french fried onions tantalized oll who have walked past Central's Home Economics Department. How to live at home is always in consideration and the school helps meet this problem. Since many of the girls will spend most of their lives in the home, part of the hour was spent in homemaking. Experiences in gracious living were part of these lessons, too.

Pins and needles, pots and pans, budgets and wedding rings - these ore symbolic of the Home Economics Department. Central is proud of its classes in home ec. Girls learn all the aspects of modern homemaking. This department contributes to society a healthier, happier, and more responsible individual.

"Industrial Arts builds toward more effective utilization and appreciation of the materials, processes, services, and products of business and industry."

Central courses in Industrial Arts are auto mechanics, drafting, electricity, machine shop, welding, and wood working. They are carefully supervised whereby pupils may gain knowledge to wisely choose a future vocation.

Through the various shops, such as wood, machine, and auto, a student receives a valuable supply of instructions and information which enables him to hold the more specialized jobs offered by various factories in Fort Wayne and elsewhere.

Vocational Education is for pupils who have definitely chosen their vocations, and their training must go beyond Industrial Arts. This course gives specific training for employment in trades, industry, and business. Vocational Education develops definite habits, skills, and information so that the student will be able to enter his chosen vocation with reasonable assurance of advancement. Central boys are indeed fortunate in these classes.

Vibrant, subdued, and mellowed ore adjectives describing color, the essence of the Art Deportment. Centrol's Art Deportment offers mony courses where pupils can use color to an advantage. Here students work on various creative projects, many of which take honors in art shows and contests.

All forms of art and decoration are taught along with how to apply materials, technique, and the different tools of an artist.

Proof of the excellent work the art students have achieved comes with the great number of awards won each year in city-wide contests. Posters for Fire Prevention Week, charity, and others have won honorable mention or even excellent prizes.

"Self expression through the medium of art." This might well be the gool of the Art Deportment as students develop abilities and create for themselves. A course in ort appreciation lays the foundation for work with a brush, a chunk of clay, of a handful of wire. Some like the realistic approach, while others take to the abstract.

Films, focts, and figures are all symbolic of Drivers Troining as Sis Arnold explains to one of her classes before they "take to the road."

Closs outside? Sure thing. Almost every day during the football season the band practices marching on the football field under the direction of Mr. Dore.

These classes round out our fine curriculum.

Any student can learn to drive sofely and learn all the techniques of goad driving by taking drivers education.

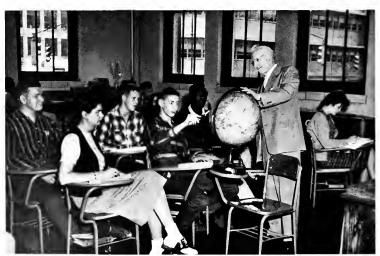

Freshmen and beginning band are a part of the success of the band, for these beginners are the future band members. The chair also has its beginning members in the training chair, aut of which certain members are chasen to go on to the concert chair at the end of the semester.

Pupils in the ungraded rooms may go as far as they are able to go. Much remedial work is given in the fields of math and reading. The students attend these classes until they have reached their age level.

The Speech Department has many speech meets in which they porticipate and receive hanors. Learning the basic qualities of speech is just one advantage in taking o speech course.

"Keep your eyes on the 'road' and foot on the occelerator!" are just a few rules these students have to remember when driving their Aetna Drivotroiners.

In compliance with the law, health and physical education are a "must" in Central's curriculum. By a program of exercise and sports, the Physical Education Department builds muscle tone and coordination. Gym classes offer students a change from the regular classroom routine by working off excess energy, playing basketball or jumping rope. Through films, text books, and actual experience, girls also learn the value of good health.

"I got it!" exclaims John Fritz to Frank Houchin, Joe Jenkins and Mike Hayden in Phys. Ed. class.

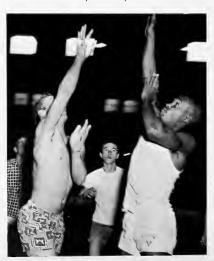

The purpose of health and safety education is to instruct youth so that they may conserve, improve, and protect their own health. It also establishes them in the habits and principals of living which will assure abundant vigor and vitality needed to provide the bases for greatest possible happiness and service in personal, family, and community life. Butch Hapkins gets initiated into Anthony Wayne Club in the informal initiation typical of many of Central's clubs. Pushing are Doug Hughes and Pia Raudsep. Watching are Glaria Stovall, Babbie Jean Thomas, and Mary Hawell.

Clubs are a necessary outlet.

Booster Club halds its meetings in classrooms as da many of Central's clubs. Other, less formal, get tagethers are held in members' homes.

Recreation plays an important part in the informal meetings of most clubs. Press Club members find basketball a good way to precede a meeting.

There are many clubs at Central. Many of them enable students to show off their special talents. This is good. Many of them enable students to get experience as club officers. This is good. Leaders must know the meaning of responsibility. They must accept their position and be worthy of it.

And some clubs are just social organizations with no definite purpose. These are good, also. They help a person without his knowing it. They take him from the realms of study, study, study to a more well-rounded program of study, study, relax. They also provide recreation for students who like to attend dances. Theirs is an important job.

Clubs have their place and are necessary in the whole Bengie idea.

Potlucks, festivals, and business kept us busy.

Family potlucks, teas, Back-to-School Night, and a Fall Festival kept the Central PTA busy during the year 1959-60. The general theme of the PTA program was "The Pursuit of Excellence." The PTA officers for this year were Mrs. Robert Walworth, president; Mrs. W. R. Gaskill, vice president; Mrs. Richard Bear, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Durnell, secretary; and Mr. D. H. Cloud, treasurer.

Throughout the school year the Parent-Teocher Association strives to bring close relations between the home and school, that teachers and porents may cooperate intelligently.

The PTA Festival was an evening of fun for all and Back-to-School Night gave parents an insight into the students' strenuous day. Study groups oided home and school by strengthening their relationships. Founder's Day program and Dad's Night on January 26, with Central as host to Junior Highs on March 15 and Teacher Appreciation on May 9, added to the list of various activities of the PTA this year.

The Parent-Teacher Association is an important part of today's high school. It is always on the job, working for the betterment of the school.

Paint, pencil, metal, clay! Central's Art Club certainly makes good use of these medians. One of the most unusual and progressive clubs at Central is the ever-popular Art Club. The Art Club of Central High is proud of its school and its purpose, which is to beautify Central and to arouse the artistic interest of all students.

"The power to appreciate growth through cultivating the sense of beauty." This statement best reveals the theme and purpose of the Art Club, Central's organization which offers greater apportunities for delving into the formula for beauty and originality — art.

"To create and maintain a greater appreciation of art," is the ultimate purpose of the club. It was organized several years ago, and is at present, under the guidance of the advisers, Miss Blanche Hutto and Miss Lareta Acker.

Sue Miller, Albert Ruch, and Sondro Miller take a break from working on large mural in the ort room.

One can be an artist in any phase of life. Mary Lou Moser and Sue Miller show their ability on the dance floor at an Art Club party.

Aw gee, let's have one more field trip soon.

Life's great open road is a favorite haunt of Central's nature enthusiasts — the Biology Club. Biology Club was organized to promote a greater interest in biology. Miss Iva Spangler is the adviser. The club meets the first Thursday af every month.

These Audubons of tomorrow spend hours roaming through parks or on river banks in search of Nature's off-spring. Hiking is also a favorite pastime of the members. The Biology Club enables its members to gain a better understanding of the out-of-doors and wildlife. These young naturalists have the opportunity to develop hobbies, cultivate a creative interest in nature, and collect material for research. Activities of the Biology Club aid students in perceiving the minute organisms that make up plant and animal life. Many of nature's secrets are revealed to the inquiring mind.

Members of the Biology Club work on notes covering some of their experiments. Included are Barbara Barker, Jane France, Irmo Tyler, Dove Cloud, Mike Derrickson, ad Sue Hesser. Biology Club is in a rebuilding period.

The Central Rocket Society was recently established for the benefit of those Centralites interested in the subject of ballistics. The members, during the winter months, studied all the phases in the rocketry field, and applied their knowledge when they built missiles. Under strict supervision and safety rules, these rocketeers launched their ballistics during the summer months.

The purpose of the club is to promote a better understanding of the subject of rockets to the members. For some of the Rocket Society members, this is the first stepping stone of training for their later vocations dealing with rocketry. What they learn is not on a complex scale, but the necessary basic fundamentals of plans and operation.

Through all this study they find enjoyment. It's a great feeling to push the firing button and watch your creation climb skyward.

Long aga, Benjamin Pierce said, "Mathematics is the science which draws necessary conclusions." Once every month a large group of sophamores, juniars, and seniors meet in Room 244 to draw necessary conclusions with their spansars, Miss Darathy Ridgway and Miss Leona Plummans. Sametimes they discuss unusual problems, tricks, equations, puzzles, and games involving mathematics.

Math Club develops an appreciation far math and investigates phases far which there is no time in class. The club pramates interest in math by opening the doors of valuable training through logical thought, besides, apening wide the doors of mathematic advancement.

The Mathematics Club's main purpose is to develop interest and appreciation for the history of mathematics, its power and application. Two of its social events are initiation and a dance. This year's dance theme was "Triangle Tangle." Every year the club finances all the expenses for the trips to the state math contests. They also have a picnic each spring at one of the parks to hannar members.

Math Club is aften a guiding factor in preparing students for careers in medicine, engineering, and science. Central's Hall of Fame will long remember Math Club, the aldest high school club in the city, organized in 1913.

The "gift ta gab" might be called the requirement of the National Farensic League. These "Speechters" are called upon to speak for pep sessions, club meetings, assemblies, outside organizations, and to represent Central at speech meets.

We learn the value of True friendship, plus —

"Opportunity knocks but once." You had better get this out of your cerebellum (mind) before entering through the doors to a Y-Teens meeting.

For there are many opportunities for all Y-Teen girls. There is a chance to make many friends; there is the apportunity to partake in group discussions. This in itself offers self-reliance, poise, and ease in speaking.

Y-Teens' members have varied programs of games, songs, devotions, inspiration, and friendship.

By living up to their code, "Grocious in Manner, Importiol in Judgement, Ready for Service, Loyol to Friends, Reaching Toword the Best, Earnest in Service, Seeing the Beautiful, Eager for Knowledge, Reverent to God, Victorious over Self, Ever Dependoble, Sincere of All Times," they shall be well-prepared to take their place in the world of tomorrow.

Enjaying the Y-Teens Christmas Party are Sandra Swank, Sharan Hughes, Miss Eickhaff, student teacher, Lauise Broaks, Katie Minar, Barbara McKinney, and Mrs. Ann Peternell. Mrs. Martane and Mrs. Saurwine are advisars for the club.

Officers of Y-Teens include Karen Trubey, Lona Beaver, Sandy Slaughter, Francie Rogers, Marge Dennis, and Jasephine Petrie.

A teacher's world, ours to discover.

The purpose of the Future Teachers of America Club is to learn about the teaching profession, its apportunities, its responsibilities; to give each member the chance to explore his interests and abilities in relation to the various fields of teaching; to learn about the training required for teachers, including scholarships, cost, and standards; and to cultivate in the members the qualities of personality, character, and leadership which are essential in good teachers.

An FTA member learns through discussions, movies, speakers, panels, and informal gatherings about teaching requirements, fields of study, specifications, challenges, advancements, and rewards.

Throughout the year, several fine speakers, panel discussions, and movies highlighted the club's meetings. One of the guest speakers was Miss Louise Brumbaugh. At Christmas time, Mrs. Patricia Martone, Central English teacher, spoke to the group about Yuletide customs in other lands. A fine film, entitled "Skippy and the Three R's" highlighted the January club meeting. It showed the importance of the teacher's responsibility to deal with each student individually according to the student's personality.

We mix business with pleasure

In Future Business Leaders of America, students are spurred an to higher achievements in the business warld, because they have a chance to get together and discuss the problems and observe activities of the business warld.

The purposes of FBLA are "to develop competent, aggressive business leaders" and "to create more understanding and interest in choosing business accupations."

Promoting interest in business methods and systems, the FBLA meets once a month with Miss Georgia Heal, their adviser. At their meetings, the club combines business, recreation, and refreshments. Each year they have a Christmas party with a gift exchange, and they also spansar a dance. This year it was an February 5. Officers, elected at the beginning af each semester, work hard to encourage interest taward business accupations among the students of Central.

At a February meeting the Lewis Room, Linda Gaskill, Pam Yarman, Pat Bell, and Ann Badders serve refreshments after the business is finished. Miss Heal is sponsor of the club.

At a typical FBLA meeting, several business minded students enjay refreshments and discuss some of the future club activities.

Former FBLA president Judy Leffler, hands the gavel to new president, Pat Bell. Other officers are Martha Brooks, Sandi Roberts, Barb Matherwell, and Linda Raquet.

No, it isn't an amateur ort club! It's a club strictly far boys, colled the Doodlebugs. The boys, without any assistance from the girls since they were first organized in 195B, have helped the athletic affice sell season basketball tickets, and kept the spirit of the student body high by leading them with their boisteraus cheering. Hordly a pep sessian went by without the Doodlebugs having a sign wishing the team good luck.

The club was started to boast school spirit; it is young and small but will grow as Central grows to bigger and better things. The club is made up of members tightly interwoven in an atmosphere of fellowship, having a true desire to help Central.

Well, who said this is a woman's warld, any way? The "boys" dan't garee!

What's this, a club with no meetings? That's carrect. The service workers help teachers check papers, run errands, and handle mony small items. They file absence slips and take attendance in study halls. Service workers relieve teachers of many minor jobs, so that teachers may devote more time to preparing lessons, grading papers and handling special problems. These workers get no pay except points which apply to pins awarded at the end of the year.

This is a Central club that never meets, but works every day. The members learn dependability and accuracy as they work with their adviser, Miss Meribah Ingham. The club has no officers or special praject except that of being efficient in their job and services to the school.

Richard Gick and Jerry Hill are working in the lab for Mr. Harstmeyer as his service workers first period.

Service workers Donno Teel, Bonnie Saylar, Shirley Cline, Carole Evans, Irene De-Tyk, Carolyn Atkinson, and Roberto Rayl check out books in the library.

We do our share, too;

"Cokes, condy, hot dogs," and "Don't rush me; you'll get your ice cream," are familiar cries made by Booster Club members at each home football and bosketball game. Since the Club's founding in 1923, the Boosters have sponsared several money-making and worthwhile projects to raise funds for useful school purposes and for support of their activities.

The purpose of the club is to promote school spirit and citizenship omong the student body. Besides selling at the games, the Booster Club sponsors various other activities throughout the year. Some of the highlights are the Christmas banquet, spring picnic, the Booster Dance, and the annual Valentine Pep Session.

Anyone wishing to become a member of Booster Club must first submit on application, ore then screened by the president and secretary of the club, and by the club council. The new members become official Boosters when they are "bibbed" on Recognition Day by the club's graduating seniors.

School safety programs need Much of our careful planning.

The only club at Centrol representing the entire student body so tharaughly is the Student Council. This club might be said to be the student governing body af the school. It is the most important policy organization of the school. Members, chosen by hameraam voting, meet on alternate Mandays. The cabinet, camposed of officers and eight members, meet to discuss the events to bring before the entire Cauncil. It is ane af the alder clubs at Central, and it has several projects to do each year, such as traphy polishing, a clean-up week, on annual dance, the Christmas program, Courtesy Week, and Safety Week. The Cauncil has also provided suggestion boxes where students may voice their opinion.

The purpose of the student Cauncil is to encourage students' participation in school affairs, to practice the ideals and techniques of demacracy, and to faster a spirit of caoperation between student and teacher. Eugene Swift, president; Charles Stevens, vice-president; Belva Bender, secretary; Onafre Gutierrez, sergeont at arms; and Mr. Richard Harstmeyer, adviser;

Skill and practice are essential on this range.

Position! Aim! Fire! Students around Central are accustomed to hearing these shouts and the firing of rifles as members of Rifle Club strive for the bulls eye. The Rifle Club, under the direction of Mr. Richard Horstmeyer and Mr. Richard Levy, is a branch of the National Rifle Association. Students interested in how to shoot a rifle are welcome to join. Others who wish to strive for more accuracy also are eager for club membership. Taking advantage of such an apportunity, students receive excellent experience in this field.

The Sportsman's Code is familiar to all members. Promoting better safety measures and safe handling of the guns is the purpose of the club.

Enthusiastic members may go as high in rank as they want. Each boy must meet rigid requirements to advance. Awards are given to the members as they advance in marksmanship. The highest honor given is the Distinguished Riflemen Award.

Members learn how to handle a rifle, become acquainted with the intricate parts of a rifle, and, most important, learn how to shoot safely.

"Life's but a walking shadow, a paor player That struts and frets his hour upon the stage And then is heard no more."

Many senior actors have strutted and fretted their haur upan the stage and then were heard no more. However, this does not mean that the years spent in dramatics are wasted.

Better speaking ability and the ability of working in close contact with others as a graup develops as a result of acting. Thus, working together as a group but also being an individual is emphasized.

After analyzing and studying a play character's personality, ane develops a better and mare mature attitude in facing his own personal problems. Responsibility is accented in all phases of life, dramatics is no exception. One has the responsibility of daing your best jab and helping others as well. After a person has spent some time in dramatics, he comes aut in the end feeling like he has gained something.

Keep workin', boy! That book's gotta get done!

After coordinating schedules, taking endless pictures, cropping those "pixs," composing "sparkling" copy, and typing it, the final deadline is reached, the editors are satisfied, and another yearbook is finished. All the headaches, the aspirins, the long hours, and the midnight oil combine to make Central's yearbook a memorable occount of the school year.

But the hard work put in by the editors, the staff members, and the printers poy off. Besides reviewing the Centralites' school activities, the yearbook brings honors to Central High School. The Caldron has become the pride of Central and one of its fine traditions.

The yearbook gives a complete account of the year's activities and work of the whole school. It tokes time to build a yearbook, and it tokes the entire student body to make its publishing possible. This year's budget of $6,400 was possible through the boosting of all Central, including homeroom teachers, classes, and activities.

This paper really took a huge step forward.

Cries such as "Turn in your copy!" and "Where's that front page cut?" ring in the ears of the Spotlight staff members. By the Wednesday night deadline the weekly newspaper must be ready to go to press — all pictures, ads, news items, features, and headlines turned in and checked.

The Spotlight editorial staff operates like a large dawntown newspaper with its deadlines, layouts, and secret stories. The editorial staff consists of the editor-in-chief, two managing editors, news editor, feature editor, sports editor, chief copy editor, and co-copy editors. The deadline is forever a dominating force and hard work is the only thing that overcomes this "menace."

The parties and club meetings affered through publications are welcomed relief from the general rautine. Although the work is often hard, it makes for good fellowship and the development of good basic characteristics.

Paying bills, selling ads, and ordering supplies are but a few of the many duties of the Spotlight business staff. The staff is made up af the business manager, auditor, ad manager, mailing manager, and bookheads. Every week and every night after school these people are collecting, checking sales books, counting maney, and folding Spotlights.

The members of both staffs enjoy the informality of their work. All readily agree that it helps them to make friends of others who share their common interest.

It's warth it to hove a little egg in your hair to get into the Anthony Wayne Club. Every semester the club has its festive initiation. Cold spoghetti, cracked eggs, and spaaky naises greet the initiates through the mysteries of a blindfald. Such initiations are never forgatten. The initiates soon learn, though, that the special speakers, projects, and fun, compensate for any "bruises" or charcoal smudges from initiation.

The Club was organized in 1945, and has had mony successful groups of students in the club. Under the advisorship of Mr. Clifford Richards, the officers have executed many well-planned meetings. The members have enjoyed presenting their idea of democracy in its mack trial, presented before the student body and the member's parents. An annual trip stimulates interest in social studies.

We like to get away from our publications.

For the Press Club it was a year of combining new changes with old traditions. One of the first changes was that the club had a new adviser, Mr. Jerry Woodring.

The purpose of Press Club is to encourage better journalism and ta promote staff unity. To be eligible for Press Club, a person must accumulate 1500 points for publications work.

The club members attended bi-monthly meetings which took place at various members' houses. The meetings often turned into surprise birthday parties, initiations or dancing and card playing, each of which gave the hardworking publications members a chance to let off steam.

We practice many hours to act at half-time.

The Marching Tigrettes add entertainment and color to all sports activities. The twirlers met both before and after school to practice the clever acts which they perform. The routines are worked out by Joyce Snoke, majorette, and Mr. John C. Dare, co-sponsor.

Interesting routines and costumes have been very impressive. They were helpful in keeping fons out of the halls during half-time. Not only were half-times made entertaining, but pep sessions, football games, and the haliday parades were all given that added touch of the Marching Tigrettes.

The club has its business meetings on Tuesdoy nights after school. Their money-making projects were selling artificial carsages and salt and pepper shakers.

Each twirler must pass a five-week testing period, o twirling test, and also must maintain good grades.

The twirlers have an annual picnic at the end of each year ot one of the city parks and at that time the afficers for the following year are announced. The co-spansor of the twirlers is Mrs. Edna Chester. Jayce Snoke has been the drum majorette of the twirlers for the past two years.

For the second year, the Centralaires, a group of boys; the Centralettes, a girls' ensemble; and other groups have shown their talent in the district contest and at other important events. Many outstanding soloists also entered the district contest. These various groups gave the choir structure.

Training groups were many in number and worked hard to earn the privilege of being in the concert choir. The choir inspired these groups to have vigor and vim as well as friendliness to make the choir o well-rounded organization.

The Modern Music Masters club helps Central's band by planning interesting projects for the band to do, these projects help keep the band on its feet financially. Tri-M's is a club for all band members who have been in band for two semesters; and who have a band average of B or above; they must also have at least a C average in their other subjects.

MMM helps further the knowledge of the band members in the field of music. The members not only have fun, but they work hard to make every project a success. The band sold trivets, candy, and eye-catching bracelets in the cafeteria during the lunch hours. The money from these projects went for the band uniforms and the band trip. The trip taken this year was to the State basketball finals at the Butler Field House in Indianapolis.

Sweet, with a swing, or an occasional rock — all were produced by our Dance Band. The season was opened by the Battle of the Classexes. The two other main events for the Dance Band were the Band's Dance and the Speech Vod-Vil.

The Dance Band, under the direction of Mr. Dare, brought "old time" favorites, which have never died away back to life. Some of the songs played were "Tuxedo Junctian," "Star Dust," and "Blue Jean Blues."

Trombones, trumpets, saxes, a bass violin, a plano, a guitar, and a full set of drums blended and contrasted at delightful intervals, combined to give a pleasing effect of our wonderful Dance Band. At wee hours in the morning, the Dance Band could be heard practicing for "Battle of the Classexes," the Band's Dance, or the Speech Vod-Vil.

Who's that new guy with the crewcut?

A note of cheer was put in the hearts of basketball, football, and concert audiences this year by Central's band. The band furnished music for the half-time show and parodes, also. Leadership, co-operation, ability and enjoyment are offered to those members interested in band work.

Many contest medals were taken by members of the band in both solos and ensembles. These medals were from both city and state contests.

The band had three money making projects this year to pay for the band uniforms and the band trips.

The Christmas concert was the only concert of the season presented on Thursday evening. After the Snack concert in May, cake and ice cream were served. There was also a record hop and a cake walk. The theme of this year's second concert was "Around the World." To illustrate the different countries' music, numbers of each country represented was played.

Centrallites are proud of their band and equally proud of their director, Mr. John C. Dare, who has added a lot of spirit to Central in his "greenie" year.

Mr. Dare directs the band during a pep session. The band plays popular tunes to give the cheerleaders a break at the pep sessions. The band sits at the north end of the gym.

Fans are a needed addition to any basketball game, especially the kind that cheer laudest. Same fans want to hear as well as see the game.

Sports, the most highly rated subject in school. Sports, everyone loves them. Sports, some are backed whole-heartedly, others are seldom seen. We praise our winners and almost forget our losers. In many we excel and everyone is happy. This is good for Bengie, too.

Sports is a fine medium by which some persons can express themselves, for there must be expression. Sports also builds many things into an individual. To succeed in sports, a fellow must work hard; if he is not willing to pay the price, the reward is not his.

Students must back their sportsmen and become part of the picture. If they've cheered their part at a game, there is true happiness from victory and real regret from losing.

And Bengie had spirit, spirit that brought him pride and victory.

Now we're city champs; it was a decade ago when we last did that.

Central fielded its best gridiron teom in a decade this year. The Bengals won seven while losing only to Elkhart to post their best record in 10 years. The win-loss average

Coach Paul Bienz did o terrific job in his first rale as head gridiron mentor. He had a lot to work with this year, which made his job a lot easier. The Tigers' victims were Central Catholic, South Side, Marion, Richmond, Muncie Central, Crispus Attucks, and Concordio.

Leading most of the offensive attacks were Jim Keim ond T. C. Williams. Jim did outstanding work as quarterback and T. C. ran the pigskin far the touchdowns. They got ample help from the bockfield in Steve Cress and Willie Rozier. Steve worked out of the fullback slot while Willie did the other halfback chores.

Far winning the city series crown, also for the first time in ten years, although they were in a three woy tie in 1956, they ottended a banquet given in their honor by the Kiwanis Club, at which they received a traveling trophy. They also went to several others. One was a party at Mr. Bienz's house that was given by the Vorsity Moms.

Henry King came in first in the Fort Wayne Sectional meet shown here. His time was lawest of any Sectional winner in the state

Ran all the way to state; almost won that, too.

Although their hopes were drowned in the state meet, Central's cross country crew rode on a wave of success throughout its season under Coach Lester "Pete" Williams.

The success of the "Petemen" was placed mainly on the shoulders of Henry King, Onofre Gutierrez, and Raymond West. These three were renowned as the "Terrible Tiger Trio and Company."

Seasonal meets honored the team with a nine-win one-loss record. The reserve team came through undefeated.

The Bengal crew had only two disappointments throughout their season — their loss to the Blue Blazers of Elkhort, and the state meet; both were one-sided and not deserved. They destroyed some intangible spirit the team had, which gave them the power to win; but it was not visible in any way except in their seasonal record.

The Sectional championship that the Bengals won was their second since the team came into existence.

Rewards were plentiful to the cross country crew, but they were all reoped in the best tradition of Central as a tribute to her fine history.

The errotic hilly two-mile course at Franke Park shows its effect on Onafre Gutierrez and Henry King, as they begin the last leg of a cross country race.

And then . . . we mustn't forget the caaches. These men are the main stays, the background far the bays of Central. Each af them guides the bays into fundamental athletics both in gym classes and campetition against other schools. Without them Central wouldn't carry the label of the "Fighting Tigers" to the fullest extent.

Coaches are the brains behind a team and put in many hours after school to help better the name of Central. When mast students are enjoying a vacation, the caaching staff is hard at wark with their teams, getting them ready for the big football season, that haliday basketball taurney, ar maybe that big track meet which comes up right after spring vaca-

Central has one of the most experienced coaching staffs in the state. Herb Banet played "pra" foatball, Warren Evistan was a "pro" wrestler, and Paul Bienz ane of the nation's leading tracksters; all were competitive in some nature of the sparting world.

Central's caaching staff is a credit to the profession, under the guidance of athletic director Mr. Edward Schlecht, It plans a twa-fold program concerned with finest physical education and with winning teams.

They wark hard to train athletes and keep them in tapflight condition. Students are proud of these men, for they play a great part in the tradition of Central.

How do you like all those brand new yells.

Win ar lose, the Banetmen are always supported by the solid backing of the Central cheerleaders. They encourage the student body to supply the needed pep and enthusiasm for their mighty Tiger team. Efficiency is their policy even though times may be trying. Promptness is a must no matter what may arise. Co-ordination and precision comes from solid practice and weekly drill. Cheerleaders have to be seam-stresses, writers, public speakers, acrobats, and leaders.

The cheerleaders' standards are high and select persons are chasen. Their qualifications consist of honesty, leadership, average grades, and most of all, high morals. The sponsor, Miss Margaret Scheumann, with the able assistance of the senior cheerleaders, carries on these traditions.

There's no doubt in students' minds that the Central cheer-leaders are rootin' for the boys. When the pressure's on, encouragement is supplied. They are always proud of their boys in blue and white, the school colors they are layal to.

The cheerleaders' motto is . . . "We're with you team, so fight . . . fight!!!"

Practicing a new yell are reserve cheerleaders, Sandy Beckman, Olga Litwinka, Emmarene Rotley, Sherry Phipps, and Barb Beerbower.

We got that city crown again, in basketball.

"Work hard together and you shall succeed" . . . This is what Central's basketball team learned after a slow start this year. At the beginning of the year the teamwark problem arose. After losing two of their three opening games, the boys began to work together instead of as individuals. Their hard work was displayed when they upset Indianopolis Attucks, the defending state champions. This was also the year that Central finally beat South Side. After losing the first encounter of the season with the Archers in an avertime, the Tigers were out for revenge. The win from South, as well as a win from North and two wins each from C.C. and Concordia, was all that the Tigers needed to win City Series. The victory was the eighth outright city basketball championship for the Tigers.

Coach Bob Armstrong and his reserves came up with another good year. They wound up the season with a 15—3 recard. The boys were defeated only by C.C., North Side, and Crispus Attucks. The team's longest winning streak was seven games. This year's team was known for their ball-handling as well as their sharp offense and defense. Ben Lynch was high scorer for the reserves with an average of eleven points per game.

This year's freshman team proved to be terrific again, the team won thirteen games while losing only six. The freshman team also won the city title for the faurth year in a row. Coach Dille is anxious to defend his team's title again next year. George Underwood was the high scorer of the team by sinking thirteen points per game.

Our Bengals took sectional and regional.

Every year, about the lost week of February, everyone all over the state of Indiana starts to become excited. This excitement is caused by "Hoosier Hysterio." When Sectional Basketball competition begins, one can expect onything to happen. This year Central drew its old foe, South Side, in the first game.

Central knocked South out of the tourney and had beaten them twice in a row! This was followed by two easy victories over Concordia and Huntertown. Then came the championship game against Leo. The Lions surprised everyone by leading the Tigers at the end of the first quarter by seven points. Central fought back and tied the scare early in the third quarter. Leo then tried to freeze the ball. They held the ball for nearly five minutes. By then, they were so excited that they missed the shot and fouled Central. Leo was so stunned that they never recovered until after the game. Under the leadership of coach Banet, Central proved to be the strongest team in the Sectional.

In the Regional, the Central Tigers proved to be mighty again. Under the strong coaching of Herb Banet, the boys literally walked away with the Regional crown. In the first game Central's zone proved too much for the Waterloo Wildcots. The Tigers jumped to an early lead and won the game 84—57. Albian beat Berne in the following game by a small margin of two points. This presented the dramatic climax for the final game. Central would have to defeat Albian to be able to enter Semi-state competition. After jumping to a twelve point lead at the end of the first quarter, Central sensed victory. They never let up and won the Regional title by a score of 87 to 72. The fons began chanting, "On to State!"

"Where's the ball?" the players in the picture appear to be saying as the ball got away from everyone during the Central-East Chicago Washington game at Butler Field Hause. Tigers shown are Ray Thompson (34), J. C. Lapsley (50), and Jim Keim (5).

One by one we beat all foes and shot our way to state.

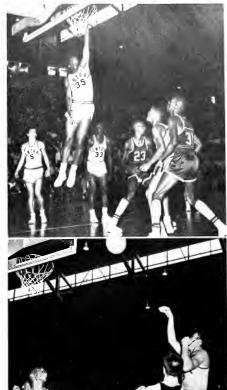

Central was terrific again. The Tigers thoroughly trounced both Elkhart and ing, and shooting, and end

Bluffton to pave their way to Butler Field House for the state finals. In the afternoon game, Elkhart was able to keep up with the Tigers for the first half but fell behind to stay in the third quarter.

In the evening game, the Tigers made 49 percent of their field goals and 75 percent of their free throws. The Tigers ogain showed their excellent passing, rebounding, and shooting, and ending the game with a score of 93—67.

"We're proud of our team!" That chont was echoed long and strong as Central's hopes for a state chompion were doomed. As the finol gun sounded, our Tigers were on the short end of a 62—61 score. The Tigers put every last effort forth, but the Eost Chicago Washington boys were just too toll for a good team like Centrol to beat. Although the boys out-rebounded Eost Chicago 44—41, the mighty Tigers were too tense to make those needed baskets for a victory. Best of luck Tigers, and congratulations for a fine basketball year.

We did our best to win all those meets.

The Bengal cinder seoson opened April 5 ot St. Vincent's Villa against Central's downtown neighbors, Central Catholic. Although several members of the team were hampered by ineligibility for the first few meets, several members were outstanding. J. C. Lapsley, high-jumping forward on the roundboll squad, was the big man on the high jump field. Speedster T. C. Williams excelled in the 100-yard dash and the broad jump.

Sectional cross country champ Henry King was in the 880 hurdles. J. C. Beachem was also jumping the barriers. Senior Larry Reynolds was the big pole vaulter. Willie Curry, Dick Botes, Kenny Hill, and Jimmy Goodson threw the shot for the harriers. The freshmen participated in four meets to gain needed experience.

All the hard work, time, and sacrifices that have been made are justified. A one-and-a-half hour play may have taken twenty times that many hours to prepare. Recognition ceremonies hold the highest position. Their re-

Many clubs sponsor dances for all students.

Slow ar fast records, people would always dance at the Friday night dances. During the past year there were many dances spansored by the different after-school activities. The Baosters, the Student Council, and many other clubs worked hard to make their dance just "a little bit better" than the preceding dance. There were many different themes which were chasen for the names of the dances. Amang these were "Molecule Madness," "Cupid's Cauples," and "Dealer in Dreams." The clubs spent much time daing work for three hours of evening enjayment for all the teenagers who attended the dances.

Rock and Roll was among the favorites of these teens. The sangs were up to date and had variety. All this adds up to an evening of fun and enjayment. The dances ended early enough so that anyone could stay for that "last dance" to be enjayed. Every dance had its own form of entertainment; at some dances there were special attractions such as the Dance Band ar the other talented teens performed to the height of their ability. The Dance Band played not only slaw numbers but they brought back a few fast songs for the enjayment of the audience.

Realistic figures make the difference. "Bots, witches' brew, and witches" remind everyone of the Speech Department dance, "Haunted Hallow."

Images of dreams and ather fantasies filled the cafeteria May 2, 1959, with the event being the Junior Prom. "The Warld Outside" was a fairyland with blue, gald, and red lights flashing around ta give it a romantic and maad catching effect. The music provided by Waady Neff and his archestra, pravided an enchanting background. Queen Karen Walworth ruled this unbelievable world with majestic gracefulness.

"Great," "wanderful," and "fabulous" are just three of the many adjectives used to describe the Senior Pram an December 12, 1959. The annual affoir was well attended and was the first Senior dance to have an after pram party. Decorations were perfect for its theme, "Winter Fantasy." The "Galaxies" played for the pram and "Jim Ridley and the Sentinels" played for "pramtrotters" until 4 a.m.

Weren't those class plays something; just great!

The Junior Play, "The Defiance of David Charles," was the life of teenogers. The play revolved oround David Charles, portrayed by Harold Hopkins, and about a high school boy who subconsciously wos competing with his successful architect fother, Mr. Charles, portrayed by Robert Tilker.

As in every play, little problems developed, such as how to enter from the opposite side of the stage when ance you had exited the wrong woy. Or backstage, a fomiliar saying heard many times was, "What is my next line?" The back stage crew also had their bad moments. The few finishing touches to the stage appearance was sometimes forgotten.

The ploy conveyed the problems and tension that teenagers of today ore confronted with.

The curtains closed as the cast did make-up touches for the next act. Cover up far another person was discussed then the curtain opened again for the following act or curtain calls, and once again the Juniar Play was a success.

For many of Central's underclassmen it was the best program they had ever seen. For others who had viewed the event previously, it was the best yet. There were the mixed comments of those who witnessed the onnual Christmas Basket Program.

The setting was complete with a lorge Bible occupying the south end of the floor and a manger scene with actual persons dressed in the garb of shepherds and kings of the time of Christ posed in a life-like set with a famous star above them.

The program commenced with Central's Concert Choir singing the carol, "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful!" The Christmos Story of the birth of Jesus Christ followed. It was given by the students of Central and was followed by Pastor Wascovich of the First Christian Church with a message for the students and their spirit of giving.

The message preceded the singing of the "Night Before Christmas" by the Centrolettes. Then came the "Conventry Carol," "Jay to the World," "We Three Kings," "The Twelve Days of Christmas," and the choir finished with very old, but popular, "Carol of the Drum." This was followed by Mr. Spuller's presentation of the boskets to the Christmas Bureau to give the needy families under their employ a Merry Christmas.

The Choir closed the program by singing corols in which the whole school was urged to participate. Finally, the choir recessed with their opening song, "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful."

TOP: Members of Student Council act out the Nativity scene standing before baskets of food danated by students in a week long drive.

MIDDLE: Cheri Miller, sophomore, tells Centrolites port of the moving story of Christmos. Other speakers seated are Reverend Wascovish, and Dave Fitzwater and Elmer Komm, juniors.

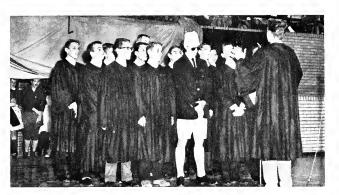

BOTTOM: Mr. Wetzel directs "Twelve Doys of Christmas" at the Christmas program. The main speakers are sitting before presents which go to needy families in this orea.

Ben Lynch, Rodney Haywood, David Green, and Bill Hudsan, all adorned in white sheets, surround Judy Hines in the casket as Patsie Dorton looks on. These students are preporing for daring visitors in the Spook House at the annual Sophomore Carnival.

Jay Toylor and Pam Yormon practice o dance routine for the Speech Vod-Vil. Theme of the Vod-Vil was "Oklahama."

"Singing" one of the class's favorite songs, "Mory Hod o Little Lamb," are the Sophomore boys, as they present their contribution to the Bottle of the Classexes. Joe Hobbs directs the vacalization.

RIGHT: Sonny Comeron practices "Buttons and Bows" which she sang in the Speech Department's Vod-Vil in May.

Those students sure can create funny acts.

Chorus lines, soloists, quartets, and special talent were enjoyed by everyone who attended the annual Vod-Vil, "Oklahoma," presented by the Speech Department in May. Ann Beers ruled as Queen of the Vod-Vil.

In February, the Sophomore Carnival was staged in the cofeteria as one of the most successful projects of the year for the Sophomore Class. This is the first time a carnival queen was chosen. Linda Raquet received a transistor radio as queen in this annual affair.

Many booths such as bottle throw, spook show, country store, fish pond, sophomore dip, and novelty stand made this year's carnival an evening of fun for all who attended. All booths were in the cafeteria except the basketball toss. Chairmen for the carnival were Pat Cramer and Miles Dunscombe, publicity; Rose Mollison and Cleosia Howell, tickets; Sandi Roberts and Bonnie Williams, decorations; Rick Kempf, set up; Joyce Long and Nancy Favory, refreshments; and Tom Hamilton, posters.

There were many new booths this year, such as the Western Union booth. Messages were typed an Western Union telegram sheets and the person the message was to be sent to was paged over the public address system and were carried around by messengers dressed in black leotards and white shirts.

Also this year there was a sophomore dip. It was a booth where one threw a ball at a target, and if the target was hit a sophomore was dipped. It was a booth where one threw a ball at a target, and if the target was hit a sophomore fell into the water.

Junior boys were given the honor of having the best act in the "Battle of the Classexes," which was presented in the boys' gym in October. The senior girls were awarded the plaque for the most orignial act, and the junior girls won the award for the best costumes.

Each year, two famous Fort Wayne personalities served as judges for the contest. This year, the judges were Bob Carter, from WPTA-TV, and Al Russell, from WGL.

"The Battle of the Classexes" is presented every year at Central to promote Caldron sales.

And a one, two, three . . . four!" Annette Prudhomme ond Koren Jenson do the "Chorleston" in preparation for the Vad-Vil in May.

The hoop-o-loop was o new feature in this year's Sophomore Cornival. As girls stick their legs through the screen, contestants would try to throw hoops around their legs.

Sandi Roberts, Patsie Dorton, and Nancy Pogue practice singing "You Con't Get o Mon with a Gun" for the Speech Vad-Vil.

We had all kinds of pep sessions this year

An early fall pep session featured Bill Fredricks as "Khrushchev"

The Central faculty put on an hilarious Regional pep session. Mr. J. T. McCary drums as the teachers let laose with a yell.

Ricky Kamm and Ron Werskey prepare to jump through the "State even teachers.

A Central pep session is really "the most." You can never tell what's going to happen at a pep session. But no matter what you discover, you can bet it's clever and well done.

All sarts of odd characters appeared this year in our pep sessions. They ranged from "Mr. Clean" and visiting Russians and Arabians to "beatniks." Students are prepared for anything when they enter the gym on Friday. They might see the teachers letting down their hair and twirling and cheerleading or the boys taking over the cheering black.

The student body was omazed when the Booster Club brought "T.V." to Central. No pep session would ever be complete without the band and its contribution. Along with the band one con't forget our Marching Tigerettes who present Old Glary while we stand and sing the National Anthem.

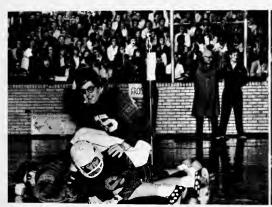

Pep sessions this year showed the real spirit of Central. All pupils looked farward to pep sessions with great enthusiasm and were disappainted when they ended. Sponsored by several different clubs, the band, and cheerleaders, the pep sessions were held before football and basketball games and before the games that Central played in the tournaments. Their purpose was to boost Central's Spirit for the evening games.

"Ole King Soudi, himself!" Doug Deal and Borry Jankins carry the Arabian King, Bill Fredrick, off the gym floor at the pep session before a game against South Side that evening.

The "twirlers" were imitated at the teacher's pep session, by the men teachers. The teachers had charge of the Regional pep session.

In one of the year's first pep sessions are Dale Boone, Dan Booty, Tom Ellis, Lorry Little, Jim Keim, Bill Fredrick, Mike Brouwer, and Dave Perez.

"Man, coll me an ombulonce!" exclaims Bill Fredricks to fellow "cheer-leaders" Joe Prott, Bob Tilker, Jerry Robinette, and Onofre Gutierrez at the second pep session of the year.

The chair was singing very softly during this number dane at the second concert. Mr. William Wetzel is director of the chair.

Our music department gave many fine concerts

The Christmas Concert was the first cancert of the season. It was staged in the cafeteria and was of Christmas music with a few tauches of relaxing music. The Winter Concert was entitled "Around the World In Music." Numbers from England, Russia, China, France, South America, and other cauntries were featured. The last concert was the annual Snack Cancert. It featured the popular sangs of today in both popular and classical music.

Through each concert, the choir, band, and orchestra faund the places in which they needed to improve. They also found that numbers they had trouble with in practice, were the ones that were played best at the concert

A few musical selections which were played or sung are "Around the Warld," "Calanel Bagey," "Flower Drum Song," selections of "Music Man," "Twas the Night Before Christmas," and many others. Centralites have an advantage over the parents, because they cauld see the concert in the marning for a dime, and the parents had to pay seventy-five cents to see the concert in the evening.

LEFT ABOVE: The choir performs a number at the Christmas concert. LEFT: Central's Orchestra consists of a few violinists and several band members. The orchestra played at the first and last concerts of the season. Mr. Dare selects the members of the band who have fourth period lunch and who have the required obility.

An oerial view shows of the band and chair's second concert of the season. The chair is singing a number, while the band listens and looks on intently. Mr. William Wetzel is directing the chair. The chair and band song and played many songs from foreign countries.

The Concert Choir wotches Mr. William Wetzel very corefully os he directs o number at the second concert, "Around the World in Music."

Look at those guys, getting all those awards!

Flowing gray gowns and mortar baard hats were everywhere the last week of school of 1959. All of the underclassmen looked with envy as the seniors paraded through the school. But little did they realize that the seniors were looking at the frash and remembering their awn freshman days. This was the day seniors had looked forward to when they were freshmen.

An air of excitement stimulated Central's seniors. Students were proud and a little bit envious as they watched seniors and other students receive awards an Recognition Day. Athletes, public speakers, journalists, musicians, artists, and many others received their well-deserved awards. Some of the major awards given were the Mathematics Traphy, the Mendenhall Award for basketball, the Writer's Cup, the Fleck Achievement Traphy, the Caldron Cup, and the Nielson Trophy.

Another traphy given to the Valedictarian and Salutatarian was the Schalarship Cup. The highest award of all was received by Sharan Frank and Jerry Gaskill who were elected by their classmates as the Best Citizens to receive the Doenges Cup for Citizenship. Some were overjoyed when they received their scholarships, awards, and trophies an Recagnitian Day. The announcement of scholarship winners was thrilling. The winners were happy because their efforts had reaped a harvest. Sharan Frank, chosen as Best Girl Citizen, gave a farewell speech to the student body on the fine occasion. The climax of the pragram came when the seniors marched off the gym floor. Central is proud of all these for school spirit the Class of 1959 set will be carried out through the years to follow.

Tears, trophies, and tributes were symbolic of Recognition Day of 1959. Students were proud and a little envious as they watched these seniors receive their well-deserved

A very pleased bay, Bill Garmire receives a well deserved science award from Mr. Harstmeyer on Recognition Day.

Athletes, public speakers, journalists, musicians, artists, and many others, received awards on Recognition Day. An air of excitement stimulated Centralites as they watched their fellow students receive awards for a year of outstanding achievements. Mr. McFadden presents a speech trophy to Chuck Stevens. Ann Beers assists him in the background.

Oh, for the excitement of Recognition Day! Solly Furniss, Rebo Hughes, and Deliloh Fagel "talk it over."

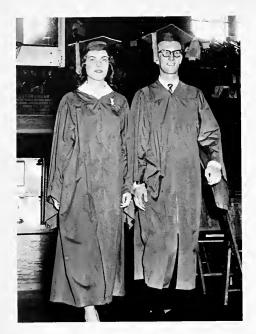

A representative from the Kiwonis Club presents the Kiwanis trophy to Bill Boyd on Recognition Day. Athletes, public speakers, journalists, musicions, artists, and many others received their well deserved awards.

Mory Chapmon is all smiles as she receives a GAA Sports Trophy from Sis Arnold. Recognition Day is a "special day" students look forward to because it shows the true spirit of Central.

The Fleck Achievement Trophy, on outstanding oward for underclassmen in the publications department is presented to Elizabeth Arnold by Ron Janes. Jim Hullinger, Sondy Jones, Goy Lambert, and Judy Cambs look on. This oward is given to the most voluable underclassmen in publications. It was established by Mr. Clean Fleck, former adviser of Spatlight and Coldran.

Making their last appearance befare the student bady, Jerry Gaskill, and Sharan Frank, lead the class to the gym floor far their afficial farewell.

"We Hitch Our Wagan to a Star" was the theme for last year's Seniar Banquet. It was also the topic which Mr. Aaron T. Lindley, superintendent of Fart Wayne Community Schools, spoke on at the graduation program. Jim Goldsmith also spake on this topic for it was the goal of each member of the class.

There goes another group best of luck always.

The Class of 1959 saw their four years at Central come to a tearful canclusian an June 4 in Central's gymnosium. The pragram was apened with the invocation, which was presented by Jerry Gaskill, class president, and the Speaking Choir, which consisted of 21 members of the senior class. Ruth Tyndall then welcamed the members of the faculty, parents, and guests of the graduating seniors.

Members of the Speaking Chair and Mr. Aaran T. Lindley, Superintendent of Fort Wayne Community Schaols, spake on the tapic, "We Hitch Our Wagan to a Star," which had been the theme for the Senior Banquet, and which had served as o gool for each member af the class.

Diplamos were presented to 158 bays and 131 girls, including two night school students, who had successfully campleted four years at Central. Miss Meribah Ingham, deon of girls; Mr. Ralph O. Virts, dean of boys; and Mr. Paul Spuller, principal; made the presentations.

Far faur years the 1959 groduating class had been advised by their three sponsors, Mrs. Ladonna Huntley, Mr. Rabert Armstrong, and Mr. Gordan Fatzinger. This class will forever hold a special place in Central's hall af fame.

In the background, the Speaking Chair, consisting of 21 members of the graduating class, make a presentation while Mr. Lindley, Mrs. Huntley, Mr. Fatsinger, Mr. Virts, Miss Ingham, and Mr. Spuller listen attentively on the platform.

of outstanding Seniors;

The class of 1959 saw their four years at Central come to a conclusion on June 4, in Central's gymnasium. Here, Doug Bateman receives his diploma from Mr. Spuller. Miss Ingham, Mrs. Huntley, and Mr. Fatzinger look on.

Senior Recognition Day, the day seniors wear their caps and gowns far the first time, is a climax to faur years of high school. The entire class and the entire student body thrills to the forewell speech, high point of the Recognition Day ceremonies. Sharon Frank, Best Girl Citizen, prepares to give the last speech, a forewell speech, from the class of 1959 to the student body.

The graduation program of the Class of '59 was presented in Central's gymnasium with Miss Meribah Ingham. Mr. Raiph Virts and Mr. Paul Spuller made the presentations. Here, Jerry Gaskill, class president and salutatorian, presents his graduation speech.

"Sign here!" and "On this page here!" exclaim several of Central's graduating seniors to Dan Linton. In years to come, these students will hold their yearbook and the memories it holds as a cherished passession. For most students, there never seems to be enough space far valuable signatures of their fellow classmotes.

We appreciate everyone's help this year.
